Mr Harry Odell, Hongkong impresario and film distributor, who has just returned from America has made headlines in the Cinema Trade magazines in both America and England with a statement to the press.

He said: Foreign pictures are slowly being frozen out of the important Hongkong market by leftist interests.

Managing director of International Films, Mr Odell says: "It is done simply by the acquisition of key cinemas by leftist groups or by leftist groups who supply the finance, who then take over the control of programming."

Interviewed in his office this morning, Mr Odell emphasised that the acquisition of cinemas by leftist groups is a contributing factor to the huge backlog of foreign films which are waiting to be shown in the Colony. He said: "The position is. there are too few theatres to show the outstanding foreign films, that is why some of the best are getting no show at all." He added that there was room for at least two more first run theatres for showing foreign films, as well as room for a theatre showing the best art creations of foreign studios.

"Something on the lines of the Curzon and Studio One, in London's West end, is maded." he added.

BOY

London, Nov. 25.

THE British importers of a Hongkong-made plastic L catapult which blinded a boy in the left eye, were today ordered to pay £2,500 (HK$40,000) damages to the boy. The judge, who described the catapult as "a most dangerous toy to let loose on the juvenile market," also ordered that £100 be paid out immediately to the boy's mother so that she could buy him an electric train for Christmas. The boy was seven-year-old Nigel Godley who lost his left eye in an accident with the catapuit, which enapped and struck him in the eye.

After the judge had given his decision counsel for Nigel's father asked for £50 to be paid out immediately as the boy. had been promised an electric train if he won his case and he had set his heart on having it.

The judge said that the sum should be 2100 and that the rest of the damages be paid into Nigel's local court-for investment

In his judgment he stated that the catabult was of a brittle material likely to break into fragments under pressure, and was unmerchantable.—Renter.

the common tropical belief that all Englishmen are crazy. They can just point to 27-yearold bearded Londoner Charles John Coleman, who has set out on a 4,000-mile drive from Buenos Aires to New York. It's been done before, but what brings the giggles in Argentina is that his car -- a 1925 Austin 7 borrowed from the Montagu motor museum. -- is older than he is. They also find incredible the fact that he has never been in South America before, though he's convinced the Austin can handle anything the continent has to offer under the name of roads. No-one seems to have told him that at least one point - the Darlen jungles of Central America. - the vaunted Pan-American highway peters out completely for 300 miles. Everybody else attempting the trip has had to do this stretch by beat. But Charles is confident that he can nevertheless reach New York by April next year. Ploture shows Charles and his Austin leaving Buenos Aires. Next stop Santiago - theu, Lima, Quito, Bogota, Caraoas and on through Panama, Central America and Mexico into the US .-- Express

Plea Rejected

London, Nov. 25. Dr John Bodkin Adams, a family doctor acquitted in 1957 of the murder woman patient, stood with bowed head today when told that a professional body had refused to restore him to the medical register.

Dr Adams was struck off the register by the disciplinary committee of the General Medical a court had fined him £2,400 on other graver charges." 14 counts ranging from forging prescriptions to obstructing the police by trying to conceal dangerous drugs.

Abide Loyally

The committee, after a public nearing here today rejected, the p 59-year-old doctor's application not seek ball. to be restored to the register. A solicitor for the council, Mr G. J. K. Widgery, said Dr Adams had circularised members of the committee with a statement declaring that he had ab'ded loyally by its decision and had not practised medicine since being struck off. Mr Widgery then called three chemists with shops near Dr Kilburn. - China Mail Special. Adams' home in Eastbourne, on the south coast.

They testified that Dr Adams had dispensed prescriptions since being struck off. One chemist said he had filled 160 prescriptions for Dr Adams, all for simple remedies, Doctors not on the register are not prohibited by law from practising medicine but they may not prescribe dangerous drugs or write prescriptions under the National Health Service, Mr Widgery said.

Absolute Hell

Counsel for Dr Adams, Mr John Hobson, sald his client would "continue to have a life of absolute hell until he restored to the general medical register."

Mr Hobson said the events in which Dr Adams had been involved had brought utter disaster to him. "He can go nowhere without people pointing a finger at him." Dr Adams had taken no fee in respect of the 42 patients for whom he had prescribed simple remedies. They were all personal friends who asked his ndvice on social occasions,---China Mail Special.

TO the book-embattled Field Marshals of Britain, I bring news of a mere Brigadier-General who is outselling the lot of them.

I refer, of course, to Ganeral Charles de Gaulle, whose final volume of memoirs is selling here at a rate which puts him well ahead of Francoise Sagan as the biggest money-spinner in French publishing history. This latest volume, published at 30s. - twice the price of a Sagan-is selling at the rate of 5,000 copies a day.

The first volume of General de Gaulle's memoirs sold 115,000, and the second 70,000, in France alone, and both are still selling briskly in cheaper editions.

Print order

Because of the increased interest in de Gaulle since he returned to power, the first print order for the present volume was 143,000, and the sale will almost certainly touch the 200,000 mark.

Lahore, Nov. 25.

A resolute, unbeaten 152 by Saeed Ahmed gave Pakistan a fighting chance of saving their series against Australia on the fourth day of the second Test here.

Pakistan, who began the day needing 107 runs with eight wickets standing to avoid their second defeat of the three-match series, scored 150 for the loss of only one more wicket. They closed at 288 for three - 43 runs ahead of the Australians, who made 391 for nine declared in their first innings in reply to Pakistan's 146.

SCANDALS OF SPORT

The Greatest Of All Athletes—Yet He Doesn't Exist

By REX LAWRENCE

Don't search the amateur athletic records for the name Jim Thorpe. It's not there. Yet he was probably the greatest athlete the world has ever seen.

Why this anomaly? At the height of his prowess, Jim Thorpe fell victim of the sham-wrangling that persists to this day between amateur and professional sport. He was and his name was erased from branded a "professional" the official records.

And sportsmen everywhere idolised him,

Then, when Thorpe was at the very zenith of his fame and glory, officialdom in the shape of the Amateur Athletle Union of America mercilessly struck him down. He was branded a "professional," forced to return his treasured medals and trophics i -and his name was expunged from the annals of sport for-

For many years sportswriters everywhere argued the pros and cons of Thorpe's position. Thousands of sportsmen pleaded and petitioned the suthorities for his re-instatement as an amateur. They pointed out that Thorpe had not been paid for any of the athletics events he had contested. But the AAUA was adamant.

Thorpe, they decided, was out for life.

Public Sympathy

Moved by the sympathy of the cublic, Thorre said: "I wis ofraid I'd get that everlasting feeling of having wasted my life. but these kind words of sportsmen from all over the world are worth more than all the
